PICTURES TODAY

Latest number of the Hearst Selig News Pictorial showing all the late happenings of the world.

"FROM CHAMPION TO TRAMP" (2-Part Lubin Drama Featuring Romaine Fielding.)

Commencing when a mere child, Anna Pavlova, the greatest dancer of all time, developed the craving for rhythmic dancing until she was crowned queen of the dance by the Russian artist is considered by connoisseurs to be the most perfectly formed woman in the world. Mme. Pavlova attributes the perfection of her form to the incessant exercise made necessary by practicing dancing several hours a day besides dancing in at performances every evening and two matinees a week.

She recommends a course in aesthetic dancing not only for those who wish to make the corps de ballet their profession but men and women who desire robust health and happy spirits.

refreshing, clean and enjoyable. The pictures for today include the latest number of the "Hearst-Selig News Pictorial" and a two part Lubin drama featuring Romaine Fielding and entitled "From Champion to Tramp."

The Sixth and last episode of the Princess Hassan "Under the Crescent" film series is called "The Crown of Death" and is by far the most exciting and satisfactory of the entire Universal series.

The thrilling love drama, "Lena Rivers," from the pen of the famous novelist, Mary Jane Holmes, is the big offering today at the Orpheum theater. It is in five parts. Two other splendid pictures are also shown.

Tomorrow, Ethel Barrymore, one of the world's most famous actresses, will appear in "The Nightingale" by Augustus Thomas. This feature is in five acts and Miss Barrymore is supported by a cast of Broadway stars.

The Morgan musical comedy company now playing at the Palace theater presented a new bill today called "The Billikin Girl." It will be repeated Saturday.

The plot of the play is so condensed as to include several good specialties, namely, "The Whirl" dance, novel chorus numbers and harmony singing. The company also presents an opportunity to see Johnny Capito, the only "Wap" comedian in musical comedy. Another striking feature is a complete change of costume and scenery. The principals include Belle Morgan, Alma Monreal, Jack Morgan, Happy Ward and Harold Brow. The musical numbers are entirely different from any previously used by this company.

The pictures include dramatic and comedy subjects and make up a well balanced entertainment.

It is said there is an actor famine threatening from the absorption of theatrical stars in the "movies." Managers, according to this report, have a hard time to secure suitable casts for their productions, and some are putting a barring clause in their contracts against moving picture engagements.

In a game rolled on the Gore alleys Thursday evening by a total of 414 plus. This was the first game rolled by the Grasselli team and it promises to make a better showing in the return match with the Gore team, which will be rolled on the Grasselli alleys next Thursday night.

WEST MILFORD

Baseball Team Will Play Norwood Park Team Saturday Afternoon.

As an added attraction for the big Moose picnic, which will be held at Norwood park Saturday, the West Milford baseball team will play the Norwood park team a game at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The West Milford team is considered one of the fastest teams in that section of the county and should give the Norwood park team a hard game.

The free attraction at the park next week will be Morton and Fairfield, singing and dancing comedians. This team comes to the park with a good reputation, having played in some of the leading parks in the country.

Sunday afternoon the regular concert will be played by the Cadenza orchestra and the Adamston baseball team will play the Norwood park team at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

MAE MARSH STARRED TODAY AT THE GRAND

In Four-Part Mutual Masterpiece, "The Outcast," by T. N. Page.

Mae Marsh, the little auburn-haired dynamo of the moving picture world, never gave better evidence of the intelligent training she has received at the hands of that master craftsman, D. W. Griffith, than she does in her latest part, that of the little dancing girl in the four-part Mutual masterpiece, "The Outcast," which is showing today at the Robinson Grand. There is such a vividness and vitality to her acting that she makes even the smallest role distinctive. In this dramatic photoplay by the famous southern author and present ambassador to Italy she does more. She keeps the audience continually on tiptoe, constantly alive to her every movement.

Saturday's feature will be Annette Kellerman in "Neptune's Daughter."

The Universal will present Emmett Corrigan, the famous actor, in a film version of "The Governor and the Boss," by James Barcus. This play was produced under the management of Al. Holbrook in 1914.

Lillian Drew and Richard C. Travers are principals in a two part love drama, that tops the Bijou program today. "Vain Justice" is the title. It Bijou. A splendid three part drama, "The Test" will head the bill. Helen Holmes will be seen in a thrilling railroad story and there will be a lot of comedy.

In October the Selwyns will produce Edith Ellis's dramatization of "The Devil's Garden," by W. B. Maxwell. Normal McKinnel, the English actor, will have the leading role.
